Hellooo Yellow!

Residents were making a beeline to the Artspace last Friday to sample the scones and have a chat, all for a good cause of course! Devon Stubberfield, Margaret Duckworth and their many helpers hosted Lake Grace's 'Daffodil Day' stall with Devonshire Teas.

Daffodils were on sale along with the ever popular Dougal Bear, funky yellow 'hope' wristbands, pins and pens and a myriad of other items. The Cancer Council's Daffodil Day is the largest merchandise based national fundraising event of its kind for cancer research, education, and patient support in the Southern Hemisphere. Beginning in Canada around 30 years ago, the event is now held in eight countries. It is a day to remember people touched by cancer, a day to celebrate survivorship and to hope for a brighter future.

Enjoying the Devonshire Teas on Daffodil Day were Judd McKenzie with his Nanna, Vicki Reynolds.

With more than fifty people through the doors, Lake Grace played its part in helping the Cancer Council reach its target figure of more than eight million dollars. Our support of Daffodil Day not only raises funds but gives hope to those touched by cancer.

Those lucky winners of the raffles were Genni Curtin (bathroom set), Lesley O'Neill (men's esky) and Maureen Moulden (bowl and fruit). Approximately $1,650 was raised on the day.

Daffodil Day

Thanks once again to everyone who helped in any way to make the street stall and morning tea a success. Fifty people enjoyed Devonshire teas and a chat while others shopped. Approximately $1,650 was raised. Well

EDITORIAL

- Thank you to everyone who has sent material in this fortnight, it's a huge paper (which I'm sure I will have left something out of) which couldn't have been put out as smoothly as it has without your help. A big thank you to our winter sports 'correspondents', some of whom we will not hear from until next year. Clubs need to thank their publicity people as they often put lots of other things on hold while they diligently type their notes (sometimes have to type them twice when the computer eats the first edit - always pays to SAVE), which they then email through to the Telecentre. These notes will become an ongoing history of your club.
- If you haven't already looked at our website please go online; put lakegrace.wa.tc into the address bar of your internet address browser (don't do a search) have done a little more but there's still plenty to do.
- We continue to have a wonderful response for the photo booth, after having 54 use the booth the first month, we've since had another 33 this month. So continue to go on those holidays or taking snaps of your kids doing 'specky stuff'. If we continue to have these numbers rolling through, the booth is likely to become a permanent fixture. Please remember for those who have negatives, slides or photos to be copies, we can scan these items and then print them through the photo booth.
- Thank you to those who have rang and shown an interest in a 'Responsible Service of Alcohol' course. You can still put your name down if you're interested.
- Oops Hockey AGM is in September not August; the correct date is in the Public Notices. Months are just flying by too fast.

Thank You

Alan and Hazel Thiel and all of the Thiel family wish to express their sincere thanks and appreciation for all the sympathy cards and expressions of condolence for the sad loss of their mother of ninety four years.

It has been of great comfort to us to receive the care and goodwill expressed by you all. This illustrates the joy of living in a small town like Lake Grace, where the wellbeing of us all is a priority and readily extended.

Thanks to all the Hospital staff for their sincere care, comfort and compassion shown over many years. It has been greatly appreciated by us all.

Again our sincere thanks.....

Thank You

Thank you to everyone who helped us celebrate our engagement on the 18th of August.

Your attendance, kind wishes and gifts were very much appreciated.

Chris and Amanda

‘Our Thanks……’

Amanda and Chris’ engagement party was a very happy time with a lovely atmosphere shared by many young and not so young folk. Thank you, to all our guests for attending.

Our visitors who traveled long distances to be here were very appreciative of their welcome to Lake Grace by the various accommodation hosts and also by the locals who introduced themselves. Many commented on how well all age groups mingled with one another during the evening.

Our special thanks to all the people who offered their help in preparing for and during the night. We are extremely grateful to the many guests who expressed their appreciation to us throughout and since the evening. To the brave people that came to breakfast and to those who helped clean up, our sincere thanks.

This special celebration with family and friends turned out just like Amanda and Chris had hoped for in their planning. ‘Thank you’ to everyone for making this ‘special moment’ in Amanda and Chris’ life such a wonderful success, we know they feel very happy and thoroughly spoilt by all.

Your generosity and gratitude shown to us will be long remembered and it was a privilege to share this evening with you all.

$6 Million For Eco 'Hot Spot' Protection

A $6 million project to preserve one of the world's most biologically diverse "hot spots" was officially launched this week in WA's Avon River Basin.

Australian Government Ministers for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, Peter McGauran, and the Environment and Water Resources, Malcolm Turnbull, said the Conserving Regional Ecoscapes Project would be a major step in protecting the internationally recognised southwest eco-region.

The project was launched at Sandford Rocks, near Westonia, by the Member for O'Connor, Wilson Tuckey, representing the Australian Government Ministers. Joining the launch were the Western Australian Minister for Agriculture and Food, Kim Chance and Dr Sally Talbot, Parliamentary Secretary to the WA Minister for the Environment, David Templeman.

Sandford Rocks overlook the Westonia Ecoscape, one of 12 landscapes measuring between 30,000 and 100,000 hectares identified in the region.

Minister McGauran said: "The region's natural environment is under threat from salinity, weeds and pests due to extensive land clearing for agriculture and subsequent rising of the groundwater table. This has had a major impact on unique plants and animals such as the Southern Cross Silver Mallee tree and the Ash Grey Mouse."

Minister Turnbull said: "The Avon River Basin has been identified as one of the richest, most biologically diverse regions in the world and this project is a step forward to conserving this internationally recognised biodiversity hotspot and to reduce habitat loss for endangered species such as the marsupial Red-tailed Phascogale.

"Twelve 'ecoscape' have been identified in the region. Six of these, located in Lake Bryde, Tarin Rock, Westonia, Tampu (Beacon), Dale (Brookton/Beverley) and Wongan Hills, have been prioritised for immediate work," he said.

Minister Chance said: "The project's numerous activities will protect the region's remaining natural populations from these threats through incentives offered to landholders to carry out activities such as weed and pest control, replanting, fencing and water management engineering for salinity control."

Mr Templeman said the project illustrated the benefits of governments and communities working together especially through the Avon Natural Diversity Alliance, to help conserve the unique characteristics of the region's natural and agricultural environments.

The initiative is jointly funded by the Australian and Western Australian Governments through the Natural Heritage Trust and the National Action Plan for Salinity and Water Quality and delivered by the Avon Catchment Council in partnership with Greening Australia and the WA Department of Environment and Conservation.

EULOGY

Norah Winifred Thiel

Norah Winifred Thiel was born on 23 April 1913 on the family farm, to Horatio and Elizabeth Willock, one of eleven children and the first to be born in Australia.

The eleven children were Horatio Ernest, Henry, Charles Leon, Dorothy Emily, Mary Elizabeth, Edward King (all born in England), Norah (first of the Aussies), Arthur Vivian, Iris and Margie (twins) and Douglas.

Mum's father, Horatio Ernest, was born in Staffordshire in England and her mother, Elizabeth, was born in Derbyshire. They married in Derby on 10 August 1898.

Horatio and Elizabeth arrived in Australia in 1910 and settled in Tammin before moving to Tarin Rock in 1912. Their first house was built of timber and all of the Australian progeny were born there. Unfortunately the house caught fire and was destroyed and a new house was built of local stone. The family lived there until moving to Gunnerside in the late twenties; this farm is still operated by the Willock family today.

Mum married Lawrence Frederick Thiel in 1935 and they had five children - Alan (1935), Maurice (1942), Clifford (1945), Helen (1948) and Bruce (1952).

Mum was a keen tennis player and played at Tarin Rock most weekends as this was one of the pleasures people had in those days. Dad joined in from time to time and that was where he met Mum.

She maintained her interest in tennis becoming a member of the Lake Grace Tennis Club. The club had two pennant teams - one called Lake Grace Green and the other, Lake Grace Gold. Mum was a member of the gold team whose motto was "thar's gold in them thar hills" which was ironic as gold was found and mined at the Lake Grace Gold Mine which was adjacent to the farm which she worked on for so many years.

On one occasion, when Australia was playing America in the Davis Cup and Australia was behind two rubbers to one, Lew Hoad was playing Tony Travert in the all important fourth rubber. The ABC broadcast was interrupted for the country hour and episode nine million of Blue Hills. Despite being a fan of Blue Hills, Mum was particularly savage and later wrote to the ABC to express her displeasure. I don't think she ever received a reply!

Alan was born in Lake Grace at the end of 1935 and lived on the farm Dad had recently taken up. He had previously farmed with his elder sister and her husband (Mr and Mrs Cy Lord) settling in Varley in 1929. After a difference of opinion he left Varley and settled on a farm at Neendaling in 1934.

Alan was taken to start life in Tarin Rock. The house was of weatherboard construction, rather basic by modern standards. However, they lived in it until 1944 when they moved to Lake Grace. Maurice, the second son, was born in 1942 and started life in the old house.

As the family home was 11 miles out of town, Alan rode his bike into town each Monday and boarded with Mrs Ernie Dunham so that he could attend school, and then he rode home each Friday.

The family left the farm in 1943 so that schooling would be easier and they lived in various houses in Lake Grace until their new house was built in 1946.

Alan continued at school in Lake Grace whilst Maurice, Clifford and Helen boarded away and attended high school in Albany. Bruce however, completed his schooling in Lake Grace.

The family lived in various houses in Lake Grace, in various degrees of comfort before a new house was built next to the power house in 1946. Mum always managed to provide good meals, not easy with the facilities available, so the new house was a boon. Three more children were born (Clifford, Helen and Bruce) and started life in what was comparative luxury.

Dad ran the power house for many years and in the Fifties he ran a weekly motion picture each Saturday night until 1965 when the family built a drive-in theatre up on the hill. Mum was in charge of the food and drink kiosk. Hazel and Alan lent a hand in the kiosk and Cliff did a good percentage of the operating, so it was probably one of the few family ventures undertaken.

During this time Dad refused to drink at the Hotel as the price of a middy had exceeded one shilling so Mum had to do a bit of entertaining as they used to drink at home instead. The kids always knew when they had had enough as Dick Dewson, one of Dad's close friends would roar off into the night in his big Fairlane.

For some time they worked the farm from town. Mum picked acres and acres of mallee roots and would often act as link man when they were surveying, holding the tape and chopping the bush down so you could see down the line with the theodolite.

Mum and Dad eventually retired in Albany and spent their time gardening, fishing and travelling. For the grandchildren who attended school in Albany it was great to have their grandparents close by.

Dad died in Albany in August 1982 and for a short time Mum lived on her own. This proved too much for her so she returned to Lake Grace to take up residence in a house by the school. She spent her final years in the aged home section of the local hospital where she was treated with great care and compassion by a dedicated and kind staff, for which we are extremely grateful.

Book Fair - Rocket Into Reading

Lake Grace Library's Book Fair is winding down, with two weeks of book sales coming to a close tomorrow (Friday 31st August). This year's Book Fair, 'Rocket into Reading', is held in conjunction with Ashton Scholastic.

Library Officers Linda Carruthers and Lois Dickins have been busy organizing and displaying the range of books available, before waving them off as they walk out the door. Last years book fair was a great success so staff at the Library have had a pleasant surprise that they have, once again, been able to sell so many titles.

There is a beautiful range of children's books, with old favourites such as 'Where's Wally' making an appearance while popular CSI TV shows have spawned a range of forensic books. Mythology, horses, Australian Story and Speccy Magee are also available for the older children.

When the final sale is made and the total dollar value of sales is compiled, Ashton Scholastic will provide the Lake Grace Library with a shopping voucher that equates to a generous percentage of the total sales. Lake Grace Library will be able to use this voucher to supplement the titles they currently have on their shelves.

Library Officer's Lois Dickins and Linda Carruthers.

If you need something for a birthday or are getting organized for Christmas (Yes, it's only four months away) duck into the Library and see what's available before it's all packed away.

Buy any washing powder from our extensive range and go into the draw to win a Breville BarVista worth $140.00.

Winter Blues?

Move over to the bright side this winter and upgrade your vehicles lighting so you can safely see where you are going!

Some vehicles still have standard tungsten headlights and we have upgrade kits in stock to convert them to quartz Halogen globes and inserts. They give off a brighter, whiter light with more penetration on dark surfaces.

Most late model cars have quartz halogen headlights but due to the polycarbonate lens you cannot up the wattage of the globes. Instead we stock Phillips night vision globes which use a Xenon Gas and give off 50% more light without upping the wattage.

Fitting spotlights is a sensible addition to any country vehicles lighting system. Come in and check out our range of Hella, Lightforce and HID spotlights.

So come in or ring up and check the options available to improve vehicles lighting and improving your safety.

Good Reads for Teens

Deadly Unna by Phillip Gwynne

Gary Black is young boy who isn't quite sure what to think of his life. He lives in a big family and his father is a drunk. His mother doesn't deserve this, the shouting and the fighting, why him? Why his family? Gary to get away from the house plays football but he is always shown up by his brother Tim Black who they nicknamed Best Team Man. Best Team Man always wins the Best Team trophy, their house is full of those worthless tiny statues and what can Gary do? Well he can get thumped and thumped again. He runs away from the ball instead of going to it but that all changes when he is forced to play first ruck. Now is Gary's chance but he doesn't want to do it. He's scared. That is until he meets Dumby Red and they become good friends. Dumby is good at football, he has the looks and he is good with the girls. Gary is none of the above. Just like football he runs away from the girls. This book is a good read for boys and girls but at times it can be a bit disturbing and awkward to read. Find out what happens in the grand final game where Gary has to play first ruck. Do they win? And what becomes of Dumby Red? Something dreadful happens to him and it is quite shocking to take in.

YOUTH ADVISORY COUNCIL

The members of the Youth Advisory Council have now completed their Monday afternoons at SteveMacs.

We would like to thank Vel Posovac and James Eaton of Stevemacs for overseeing the members with the safety requirements and first stages of cutting, grinding and welding. We would also like to thank the McWhirter family for making it all possible. Thanks also to and Mark Cameron who has given us his time for the past three weeks and Michelle Dunham who stepped in when called upon to assist with the supervising.

Welding at SteveMacs has been running for the past four Mondays and while learning how to weld with various equipment we now see the completion of a horse for the Tin Horse Highway.

Members that have been attending have had the opportunity to use a wide variety of machines to enable them to have a basic knowledge of how to cut, prepare and then weld various thicknesses of metal. They have all been able to use the plasma cutter, Arc, MIG and TIG welders as well as the grinders and the Oxy/Acetylene for cutting.

Travel Diaries

We continue on from Day 40 of Joe and June McEncroe and Helen and Clem Bennett's travels through Africa and Barcelona.

Day 40

Being a free day we all had a little sleep in to around 8.00am, then after brekky went in search of a post office to see about sending our carpets etc home. The carpet seller had led us up the garden path when he said it would only cost us about 500 dirhams ($80) to send our purchases back to Australia, it ended up being around four times as much – bummer that! Later on that day we brought suitcases for around $30.00 and loaded all our extra stuff into them. We managed to get everything home in these new acquisitions, in spite of having excess baggage – so never believe what the carpet seller tells you!!

On the way into the old city, we stopped off at some government fixed price markets - no bartering here. It was a good idea to have a look around in this type of market, as it gives you an idea of what an item is really worth when you see the same or similar thing in the “free for all” markets. The girls had a lovely time picking through the fabrics, clothes, shoes, jewellery and so on, most of which seemed to be fairly good quality.

We had lunch at a roof top restaurant overlooking the city central square, which is called “Djemaa el fna”. The square has been a meeting point for centuries and is packed with traders, Berber musicians, acrobats, snake charmers, witch doctors, tooth pullers and any thing else that is capable of earning a dirham or two. When night arrives the square takes on a carnival atmosphere which is very entertaining but at the same time can be a bit annoying, as there is a constant stream of people trying to sell you something. This is fairly understandable when you consider that most of the Moroccan people are not particularly wealthy and probably see tourists as incredibly rich. Unfortunately we only had a day and a half in Marrakech and it is certainly requires more time than that to become properly acquainted with its culture, character and mystique.

Day 41

Underway at around 9.00am on the way to the Atlantic coastal town called “Essouira” which in years gone by was a Portuguese fishing village. The drive time was about 2 ½ hours through mostly uninspiring countryside. A lot of the land looked pretty desolate and one would wonder how it would grow anything, however we did see some instances of broadacre farming, including a 25 foot header comb that Clem spotted. There were lots of sheep under constant surveillance of shepherds as there were no fences to keep them off the road. The Moroccans seemed to be full on into tree planting in this area and we spotted lots of eucalyptus trees – reminded us of good ole WA.

The only stop we had was at a building used for the extraction of argon oil. The process was very labour intensive and was undertaken by women. They sat on floor mats and opened the nut shell, then roasted the nut, then ground it between stones to produce the oil. The oil is quite rare and is mainly used for cooking but does have other uses. Its funny how many of these quite insignificant looking little places all have a sales room to display their products and its quite difficult to get away without purchasing something, even though you know you don't really want it or need it.

We arrived in Essouira early in the afternoon and it was blowing a gale. Our bus had to drop us off outside the city walls and a reasonable distance from our accommodation, so we were expecting to hump our luggage. This was not so, as in Morocco it does not take much to create a job opportunity as we had hardly even got off the bus when a small band of Moroccan men arrived with these small man pulled carts and loaded on all our gear. Our tour leader, Dave organizes the whole thing and pays them out of the tipping kitty.

The accommodation was in a Riad which was quite different to anything else we have had to date. The Riad was like a house within a cluster of buildings. It had four floors and a central atrium. There were 16 self contained very small guest rooms and lots of steps. The breakfast and general relax area was on the roof just next to one of the town PA systems used for the “call to prayer” It wasn't too bad once we settled in but they could rarely get the water warm enough to have a decent shower.

A bit more information on Essouira. It is the city of approximately 50,000 people but it seems bigger than that and like a lot of towns/cities in Morocco it has an old and a new section. We were staying in the old section (the medina), within the old walls which had a lot more charm and character to it. Being within the walls was a bit like being inside a maze, with lots of small narrow alleys and thoroughfares, many of the residences were whitewashed with vivid blue doors. It had a feeling of relaxation but at the same time many of the locals were busy plying their trade. Apparently back in the sixties it was a haven for artists and musicians, with famous people such as Jimmy Hendrix, Cat Stevens and the Rolling stones using it as their place of recreation. Hendrix was said to have written one of his songs, "Castle in the Sand", based on a castle-like looking structure that is in a pretty bad state of repair and is situated right on the water line about a two km walk up the beach.

Fort battlements overlooking ocean

We ventured out for a look around, although the weather was far from pleasant and ended up at some old waterfront forts. They must have been real big on defending what they had back in the old days as the fort was in a prime position to repel any impending attackers. The old cannons were still in place within the battlements and there were strategically positioned watch towers for spotting the baddies. Most of the area below the battlements was used as markets. Many of the people made their own merchandise and you could view them working with cloth, leather, metal, brass and wood – really clever.

Tea that night was at a great restaurant called "La Sirrocco". The chef was French and a touch eccentric but boy could he cook a tasty dish. That, with a really nice red wine made it a very enjoyable end to another fascinating day.

Day 42

This was a do as you like day, so after brekky (more croissants) we thought we had better journey to the beach. Normally this would have been a good idea but the wind had picked up again and was really blowing the sand around. Anyhow we battled on and decided to walk to Jimmy Hendrix's castle. It wasn't pleasant but we got there. It was low tide so we were able to climb right into it. It was in a pretty bad state of repair and had every right to be, sitting so close, or at times even in the water. At first we thought it was just a freak of nature but on having closer look we could see that it had been a fort at some time, as there were old steps and battlements in evidence. We could have done the return trip by camel as there were locals with camels trying to get some business but on this occasion they would have to wait for the next lot of tourists stupid enough to make the journey in the atrocious wind. When we got off the beach, the wind wasn't too bad. so we had a bit of walk around the wharf area and the fish markets. You could purchase from a huge selection of fish, some were so fresh they were still wriggling. It would then be cooked in front of you. We didn't try it but there were lot's people who were. Had lunch in the city plaza, which had a great selection of Al Fresco restaurants – very enjoyable.

That afternoon the girls had organized themselves to have a lesson in the fine culinary ways of cooking couscous. It took almost an hour and was very involved with much handling of the couscous. The Moroccans eat with their hands so it is very important that the consistency is correct. Lots of veggies were added e.g. corgettes, carrots, pumpkins, onions, cabbage, turnip, broad beans. Then came the meat, beef and chicken and the spices. The finished product was presented on a large plate and placed on a table. Shortly thereafter the guys appeared (bloody good noses on that lot) and we were given a quick lesson in the protocols of eating with your hands. The eight members of the group, plus Dave, proceeded to demolish this work of art which seemed a bit of a shame but we got over it fairly quickly. This night was our last night together as a complete group so we arranged to have a little party on the roof of our Riad. The guys managed to find a shop where they could buy some beer and wine – it's not a good country to be in if you enjoy a drink or two as grog shops are hard to find. They also located a few tasty morsels to go with the drinks. We had just got ourselves all settled in and were having bit of a laugh, as you do when the PA systems started wailing all over the city. It must have been a special religious time, because it seemed to go on for an eternity and of course we had one of the speakers almost on our rooftop. After listening to the "call to prayer" five times a day over the past two weeks, we had become quite conditioned to it but this one went a bit too far.

Heard the call to prayer at about 4.30am but managed to get back to sleep and then awoke to a beautiful day. The sun was shining and the wind had finally gone. It had been arranged for us to catch a bus back to Marrakech at 3.00pm, so we have quite a few hours to do some more sightseeing and last minute shopping, however we had to vacate our rooms by midday. The girls managed to locate some more bargains?? in the markets and then it was back to the room to try and squeeze the little treasures into the bags – it's just as well they were expandable. We had our last sit down meal as a complete tour group in the main town square, then brought some baguettes to sustain us for the journey back to Casablanca.

Back at the Riad we assembled on the rooftop and waited for Dave as we had a presentation and a group tip to give to him. Helen had brought a few Aussie knick knack's with her for special occasions such as this. The particular item we presented to Dave was a bikini shaped stubby holder in the colours of the Aussie flag. Our tip was tucked inside the stubby holder and Joe was given the job of presenting this, with a card, to our esteemed leader. He seemed genuinely chuffed about it and said that he enjoyed us as a group but he probably says that to all the groups. On these types of excursions you get an appraisal survey to complete on the eve of the tour finishing and from the general chat in the group, it is pretty well assured that he would have been rated very highly – a very pleasant and likeable fellow.

When it came time to leave, the men with their little carts re appeared to carry our luggage and it was off to catch the bus. It was a big and comfortable bus even though every seat was taken. The trip to Marrakech was supposed to take about three hours but the traffic got heavier the closer we got to the city, meaning we only just arrived in the nick of time to catch the "Marrakech Express" to Casablanca. Many readers (particularly those not so young) would remember the song by

"Crosby, Stills and Nash" about this train, unfortunately we were heading in the opposite direction. We had illusions that something would be different about the Marrakech Express but in the end it was just a train. The section we were in had separate little cubicles that sat six adults but as per usual there were people in our seats and they had to be politely moved on. It was only about a four hour journey and we wiled away the time playing a National Geographic card game that Helen produced from the depth of her back pack. Arrived in Casablanca shortly after 10.00pm and Dave proceeded to organize three of the little red Fiat taxis for our trip back to the Hotel Suisse. It wasn't easy as the drivers are extremely keen to get the business. A person with less patience and tolerance than Dave could have easily escalated the situation into something very unpleasant. The drive back to the hotel took the best part of an hour with the three drivers jockeying for front position the whole way – hilarious!! Road rules seem to be fairly flexible in Casablanca - OK non existent and here you are in a little rattly, very old, butter box with no seat belt - they were obviously all good drivers, as we all got to the hotel in one piece. We said our farewells to our American friends – Chris and Mike as they were catching a very early flight back to Wisconsin the next morning.

Day 44

Our last few hours in Morocco. Had breakfast in the hotel dining room then said goodbye to Shirley who was returning to England and her husband who has Parkinson's disease and is unable to travel. Just after 9.00am it was our time to depart, so we said our farewells to Liz (the other English lady) and of course Dave our legendary tour leader. We all exchanged contact information before we split up and have sent and received a number of emails and photos since we returned. Good to know that there is a bed for us in England and America if we head that way some day. Our taxi to the airport was a grande old Merc., unfortunately the driver knew no English so we didn't get any good goss off him.

Impressions of Morocco

Many of the travel brochures you receive from travel agents nowadays talk about "culture shock" when traveling to countries that are 3rd world or semi 3rd world – is there such thing as a second world country?? This aspect is certainly there but the beauty of being in a tour group is that you can decide how much you want to try and bridge the cultural differences. Most of our group made an effort to learn some Arabic, eat local food, adhere to protocols and respect their general way of life. There is no denying that life in Morocco is poles apart to that which we have in Australia and it really makes you appreciate how good our lifestyle is.

In summation, Morocco is well worth a visit as it still has that bit of the sense of adventure and we found it to be safe and secure – perhaps we were lucky!!

On the negative side – tipping, hawkers and the occasional grubby public toilet.

On the positive side - the country that we saw was spectacularly diverse, the history is magnificent, the people are generally very friendly, the food is mostly good, the accommodation was adequate, there was a good monetary exchange rate which made it reasonably inexpensive and the transport with the exception of those bloody little red taxis was quite good.

Thank you Morocco

Our next destination is Cairo in Egypt and we flew from Casablanca to Madrid and then from Madrid to Cairo. Both flights were with Air Iberia and the total flying and in-transit time was around 10 hours – a piece of cake.

Will continue next fortnight.....

Active Ageing: Free Farming over 55 Workshops

The Department of Local Government and Regional Development have recently awarded Farmsafe WA, a not-for-profit, non-government organisation, with funding to conduct workshops across WA based upon Active Ageing in local WA farming communities.

These FREE workshops will bring together people who have a vested interest in learning how to 'work smarter, not harder' in a rural setting, who are near or over 55 to:

- discuss how getting older affects farm work
- discuss ideas on how to make work easier and
- receive free information and products to help make work easier

Workshop locations and dates include:

Monday 10th September - Wongan Hills (WH Hotel)
 Tuesday 11th September - York (Settlers House)
 Wednesday 12th September - Corrigin (Resource & Telecentre)
 Thursday 13th September - Merredin (Community & Leisure Centre)
 Saturday 15th September - Gnowangerup (Leisure Complex)

Each workshop will include a Guest Speaker/Facilitator, along with members of the local rural community.

Participants will be provided with valuable information about the natural processes of ageing and we emphasise the take home message to accept and respect your age and make necessary changes to stay fit and well.

Sponsored by SafetyQuip, each participant will receive a free pair of Pro Lite-Grip Nitrile Foam Coated gloves and will be provided with an opportunity to assess display items. These products are just an example of what is available to help compensate for the natural process of ageing, for example a four-wheel drive wheel step (loss of strength) and a mechanical creeper (loss of agility).

With the assistance of Farmsafe Australia Inc, two trial workshops have already taken place in Narrogin and Denmark. Farmsafe WA would like to continue the work of Farmsafe Australia to promote a greater understanding of active ageing in our rural communities and develop relevant and practical resources for other WA farmers on how to remain productive and active, particularly later in life.

For further information on the Farming Over 55 program or to register your interest, please contact Michelle Darrington at Farmsafe WA Alliance on (08) 9359 4118 or email farmsafe_eo@westnet.com.au.

Investing in our Schools Programme

"Thanks to a major contribution of $2,231,480 from the Investing in Our Schools Programme, staff and students at 44 schools in the O'Connor electorate will finally be able to carry out building and playground works and purchase new equipment," announced Wilson Tuckey, Member for O'Connor.

Mr Tuckey said "the schools will use the Government funding for various projects which has been identified by the school community as being critical to their school."

"Such projects, though often desperately needed by schools, never seem to make it on to state priority lists. Rather, school communities usually face the long and arduous task of raising the necessary funding themselves," he said.

"The Australian Government recognises the importance of providing schools with facilities that will enhance the education and wellbeing of students," Mr Tuckey said. "The Programme is an exciting initiative which has delivered much needed projects to school communities.

"Since 2005 the Programme has provided an additional $700 million in capital funding to state schools, as promised during the 2004 federal election campaign. With the recent additional funding announced for the Programme, the Australian Government's total commitment to the Programme amounts to almost $1.2 billion, $827 million of which has been specifically set aside for state government schools," Wilson Tuckey said.

"This initiative is an example of the importance the Government places on developing and maintaining school infrastructure," he said.

Over the life of the Investing in Our Schools Programme, the Australian Government has provided $83.7m for 748 Western Australian state schools.

"The Investing in Our Schools Programme clearly demonstrates the Australian Government's continued commitment to a strong and effective school system, maximising the opportunities for young Australians," Mr Tuckey said.

Lake Grace District High School has received $46,110 for ICT and computer equipment.

HUMOUR

God's Email

One day God was looking down at Earth and saw all of the evil that was going on. He decided to send an angel down to Earth to check it out. So he called one of his best angels and sent the angel to Earth for a while.

When she returned she told God, "Yes it is bad on Earth, 95% is bad and 5% is good."

Well, he considered for a moment and thought maybe he'd better send down a second angel to get another point of view. So God called another angel and sent him to Earth for a time too.

When the angel returned he went to God and told him "Yes, the Earth is in decline. 95% is bad and 5% is good."

God said this was not good.

So he decided to send e-mail to the 5% that were good. He wanted to encourage them, give them a little something to help them keep going.

Do you know what that e-mail said?

Oh, you didn't get one either, huh?

Guard Dog

Sam and George owned a store in the outskirts of San Francisco. It had been burglarized several times in the past year and Sam decided to buy a guard dog.

Shopping for one, Sam found himself in Chinatown, at a pet store whose sign boasted, The Best Guard Dogs That Money Will Buy. He entered the store, but much to his disappointment, all the dogs he could see were Pekingese.

"Excuse me", Sam said to the manager, "But the sign outside says you sell guard dogs. Where are they?"

The manager, an elderly Chinese, replied, "Oh, but these are highly trained guard dogs. They all know karate."

"Karate! No way."

"I'll show you", said the shop owner. He took one of the Pekingese out to the backyard and put it in front of a brick. The dog stood absolutely still. The shopkeeper gave a command, "Karate! Brick!"

And with complete astonishment, Sam saw the little dog perform a perfect karate chop, splitting the brick in half. Totally amazed, he bought the dog. Back at his own store, he showed the guard dog Pekingese to George, who thought he was completely mad and told him to return the Pekingese immediately.

"But, he is a trained guard dog."

"Yeah, sure!"

Sam put the Pekingese on the floor and said, "He knows karate!!"

With a sneer George retorted, "Karate! My Foot!"

A Dollar Per Point

A professor was giving a big test one day to his students. He handed out all of the tests and went back to his desk to wait.

Once the test was over the students all handed the tests back in. The professor noticed that one of the students had attached a $100 bill to his test with a note saying "A dollar per point."

The next class the professor handed the graded tests back out. This student got back his test, his test grade, and $64 change.

Night Watchman

Once upon a time the government had a vast scrap yard in the middle of a desert. Congress said someone may steal from it at night, so they created a night watchman position (GS-4) and hired a person for the job.

Then Congress said, "How does the watchman do his job without instruction?" So they created a planning position and hired two people: one person to write the instructions (GS-12) and one person to do time studies (GS-11).

Then Congress said, "How will we know the night watchman is doing the tasks correctly?" So they created a Q.C. Position and hired two people, one GS-9 to do the studies and one GS-11 to write the reports.

Then Congress said, "How are these people going to get paid?" So they created the following positions, a timekeeper (GS-09) and a payroll officer (GS-11) and hired two people.

Then Congress said, "Who will be accountable for all of these people?"

So they created an administrative position and hired three people: an Admin. Officer (GM-13), an Assistant Admin. Officer (GS-13) and a Legal Secretary (GS-08).

Then Congress said, "We have had this command in operation for one year and we are $18,000 over budget, we must cutback overall cost," so they laid off the night watchman.

The Wall of Life

A funeral service is being held in a synagogue for a woman who has just passed away.

At the end of the service, the pallbearers are carrying the casket out when they accidentally bump into a wall jarring the casket.

They hear a faint moan.

They open the casket and find that the woman is actually alive.

She lives for 10 more years and then dies.

A ceremony is again held at the same synagogue and at the end of the service the pallbearers are again carrying out the casket.

As they are walking, the husband cries out, "Watch out for the wall!"

Boss's Joke

The boss returned from lunch in a good mood and called the whole staff in to listen to a couple of jokes he had picked up. Everybody, but one girl laughed uproariously.

"What's the matter?" grumbled the boss. "Haven't you got a sense of humor?"

"I don't have to laugh," she replied. "I'm leaving Friday."

SCIENCE AND STUFF

NEW MS GENE, 30 YEARS ON:

It has been a long time coming, but a new gene linked to multiple sclerosis has finally been identified—the first in 30 years. In MS, the body's own immune system attacks and destroys myelin, the fatty insulation on the brain's communication wires. Scientists focused on a gene on chromosome 5 called IL7R and found that one of its variants increases the risk of MS by 20 to 30 per cent. The variant seems to affect the production of interleukin 7 (IL7), an immune-system enhancer, causing fewer IL7 receptors to be made. This in turn may affect immune cell differentiation, maintenance and proliferation (Nature Genetics, DOI: 10.1038/ng2103).

MAKE IT SNAPPY:

Blink and you will miss it. A lowly termite, Termes panamensis, snaps its jaws at a speed that tops any other muscle-powered movement on Earth. By filming the termite's jaws at 40,000 frames per second, Marc Seid and Jeremy Niven of the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute in Panama showed that they achieved a speed of 70.4 metres per second—albeit over a distance of only 1.76 millimetres. Threatened by an intruder, the termite jams its mouthparts against each other using four sets of muscles so big that they fill half the space inside the insects head. The pent up force is what allows it to snap its jaws past one another at such speed in the intruders face. This helps a termite defend its nest in the restricted space of the animal's burrows. (International Congress of Neuroethology).

WHY CHILDREN'S CHATTERING IS INEVITABLE:

Young children become chatterboxes within months of speaking just the occasional word. Now one scientist thinks he knows why. Parents of all children will be familiar with the so-called "word spurt", when a child goes from barely talking to suddenly uttering hundreds of new words, sometimes after hearing them only once. Various theories have been suggested to explain this phenomenon. For instance, perhaps learning a few basic words helps a child learn others, or maybe children quickly understand that if there is a word they don't recognise, it belongs to the object they can't name. Now language psychologist Bob McMurray at the University of Iowa in Iowa City has a simpler explanation. He believes that the acceleration in a child's learning is down to the way most languages are structured. All languages he says, contain a distribution of words where most are of medium difficulty and a few are either very easy or very difficult. Children learn all words in parallel, McMurray adds. Essentially, a child masters the small number of easy words, but simultaneously been working on the medium difficulty words. Soon afterwards they master these as well, but it feels like a burst because there are more of them. "Acceleration is an unavoidable by-product of variation in difficulty," says McMurray (Science, vol 317, p 631).

INSPIRATIONAL:

Isaac Newton has been dead for nearly three centuries, but an idea borrowed from the great man could lead the way to using x-rays to directly image small biological molecules such as proteins. Right now, proteins must be crystallised for their structures to be deduced. The trick, says Henry Chapman of the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory in California, is to focus an x-ray laser pulse onto a particle suspended about 100 micrometres in front of a mirror. The particle—made of polystyrene in Chapman's set-up—absorbs some x-rays and scatters others, some of which are reflected back toward the particle. By the time the reflected x-rays return, the particle has begun to expand as it absorbs laser energy, and rescatters some of those reflected x-rays. The scattered rays produce an interference pattern of concentric rings, which provide information about the particle's size and shape (Nature, DOI: 10.1038/nature06049).

Newton saw a similar effect when he lit up a mirror covered in dust particles. When Chapman saw a museum demonstration, he recognised the interference pattern and realised he could use it to measure the size of a particle placed in front of the mirror. His goal is to adapt the technique to directly image atoms and proteins.

VOLCANIC APPROACH TO SOLVING CLIMATE WOES GOES UP IN SMOKE:

Mimicking volcanoes has been proposed as a last ditch solution to climate change. The idea is that pumping sulphur particles into the atmosphere would reproduce the cooling effect of a large eruption. All very well—except it now seems it could also cause catastrophic drought. Kevin Trenberth and Aiguo Dai of the National Centre for Atmospheric Research in Colorado have shown that a "sulphur sunshade" could have a deleterious effect on the environment by reducing rainfall. Sulphur sunshades are inspired by the climatic effects of large volcanic eruptions, which blast sulphate particles into the stratosphere. The particles reflect some of the sun's radiation back into space, reducing the amount of heat that reaches the Earth.

To study the effect on rainfall, Trenberth and Dai analysed precipitation and continental run-off after the 1991 eruption of Mount Pinatubo in the Philippines, which pumped vast amounts of sulphates into the atmosphere, cooling Earth by a few tenths of a degree for several years. Following the eruption there was a marked decrease in rainfall and run-off (Geophysical Research Letters, DOI: 10.1029/2007GL030524). Dai and Trenberth say this suggests that artificially injecting large amounts of sulphate particles into the atmosphere could have catastrophic effects on the planet's water cycle.

Kulin Shire Supports Housing for Local Professionals

The Shire of Kulin and Kulin Community Bank® Branch have announced a partnership to help attract and retain local police and teaching staff.

The Shire recently took out a $1 million loan with the Community Bank® branch to fund the construction of four new houses in the town. The new houses will be leased back to the Government Education Housing Authority for 10 years to provide accommodation for the principal and teaching staff at the junior high school, and also the officer in charge of the local police station. "To ensure the ongoing survival of small country towns like Kulin, we need to take the initiative and provide the infrastructure needed to keep services in our community," Shire President Jim Sullivan said.

"Quality housing is a component in the assessment of retaining a local police presence and with the recent station closures it has been timely that Kulin undertook this project," Mr Sullivan said. "And quality housing is also a strong factor in influencing teaching staff to come to the country."

Mr Sullivan said the shire and its councillors were strong supporters of Bendigo Bank's Community Bank® model. "When taking out this loan, councillors took into consideration that part of the income generated from the loan would be coming back to the community and in turn further supporting the ongoing viability of another service to the town," he said.

Kulin Community Bank® Branch Manager Rick Forward said the project had been a 'win-win' for all involved. "Police and teachers are such a vital part in any community and this project will help attract and retain those professionals here in Kulin," Mr Forward said.

"It gives us a great deal of pleasure to get involved, and we are thankful that the local Shire has taken the initiative with this project and come to the local Community Bank® branch for finance. "The more banking business at our branch, the more profits we can return to support the local community," he said.

TEN STEPS THAT MAKE EFFECTIVE MEETINGS....

- There is plenty of discussion but it's mainly on the point. If discussion strays, someone brings it back quickly – not necessarily the chair or leader.
- The members understand their task clearly. They may have had to spend some time working this out but then they are committed to it.
- The members actively listen to each other. They don't just keep silent. They give each idea a fair hearing and don't jump onto unrelated ideas.
- The group does not evade disagreement. When there is a disagreement, or problem, the group uses its energy to focus on the problem, not the person.
- Members are encouraged to reveal their opposition and not 'bottle it up' till after the meeting – a common fault in a weak group.
- There is no personal attack either openly or by veiled suggestion. Members are inclined to give positive respect and recognition. They focus on overcoming obstacles.
- The leader does not dominate. 'Leadership' shifts from time to time. The group uses different leaders for their specific abilities.
- There is little evidence of power struggles and no posturing or point scoring. Control is not an issue – it's the job and the sense of teamwork which is important.
- The members are conscious about their effectiveness as a team. They are very aware of their clients and are not self-serving as a group.
- The group is capable of analyzing a weakness in its performance and 'fixing it fast'.

...AND SEVEN THAT LEAD TO RUIN

- Allowing one or two people to dominate discussion.
- No one making an effort to keep discussions on track.
- The members not seeming to understand their common purpose.
- People ignoring other ideas while they prepare their own submission.
- A lack of focus on the issue means the conversation strays off the topic.
- Allowing disagreements to become personal attacks, leading to a breakdown in unity of purpose.
- Allowing only a simple majority vote – which can mean a substantial number may be dissatisfied.

Will You Stop in Time?

You never know what's ahead; that's the message behind a new campaign encouraging drivers to slow down in the Wheatbelt South.

With a range of road users in the region, from trucks and 4WDs to pedestrians including children and gophers, drivers need to be aware that a little speed can make a big difference.

The West Australian Local Government Association's RoadWise Program is working with the Road Safety Council to promote the Drop 5 Save Lives campaign during August and September.

WALGA President Cr Bill Mitchell is encouraging drivers to be considerate of other road users by slowing down and driving to the conditions.

"Roads are not just for vehicles. Drivers need to remember they are sharing the road with pedestrians and cyclists and it is important to drive at a speed that allows them to react in an emergency situation," Cr Mitchell said.

"Many drivers think they are safe when driving just a few kilometres over the speed limit. The reality is that if you are speeding, even by only five kilometres, your stopping time increases and you give yourself less of a chance to stop or slow down," he said.

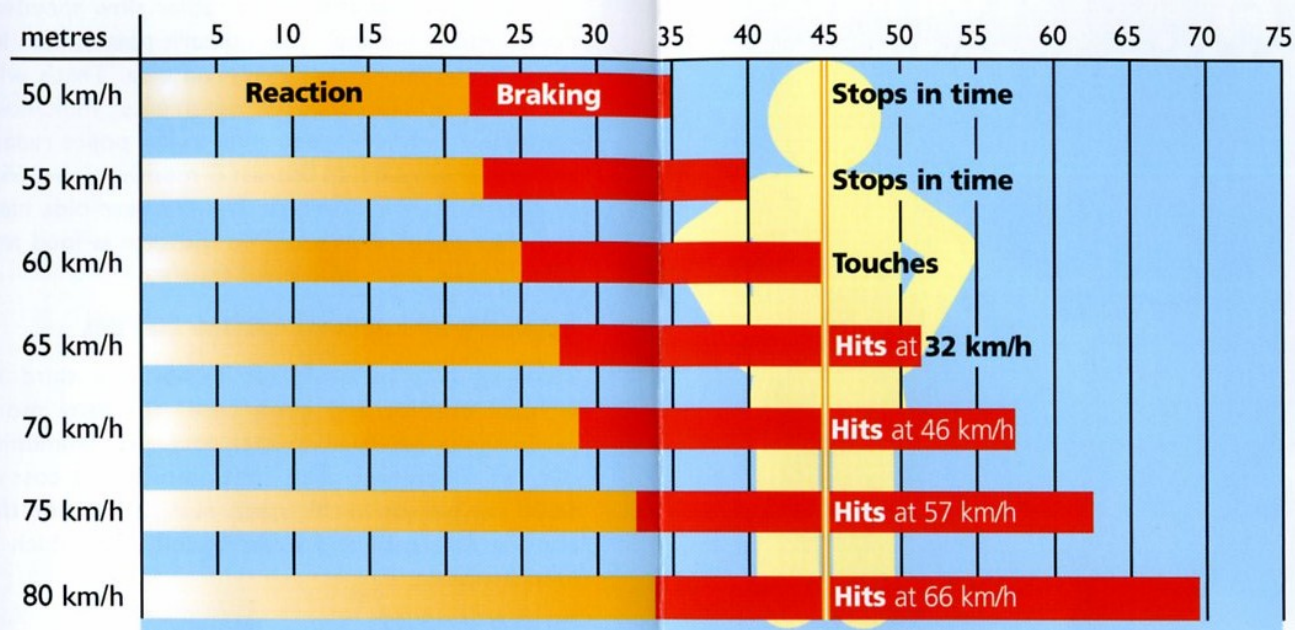

Information from the Road Safety Council indicates that even in dry conditions with good brakes and tyres, an alert driver in a vehicle travelling at 60 km/h will take 45 metres to come to a stop.

"This statistic shows how important it is to take account of conditions such as weather conditions and to be especially aware around residential areas, schools and parks," Cr Mitchell said.

Speed and the police will stop you – drop 5, save lives in the Wheatbelt South.

How long does it take to stop your car in dry conditions?

The road is dry, you have a modern vehicle with good brakes and tyres. A child runs on to the road 45m ahead of you while you are travelling in a 60 km/h zone. You brake hard. Will you stop in time?

LAKE GRACE ARTIST'S GROUP

We've been very busy this week with a mini workshop and a professional development workshop following on from the Bush Furniture and Filmmaking opportunities earlier in the month.

On Wednesday Kerrie Argent provided an inspiring lesson on the art of bookbinding. She displayed a lovely range of hand bound books that she and her daughter Jayne had created from different papers to demonstrate what you can bind to make an interesting book. Some were yet to be covered so you could see the method of how they were stitched together.

Kerrie showed how you can use blank or lined paper, kids drawings or bind special papers to scrapbook into later or use as photo albums. Participants then learnt about the terms, tools and materials used in bookbinding. Kerrie demonstrated how to tear, fold and assemble the pamphlets (pages), stitch them together securely, make end pages (the bit inside the cover), the spine and cover then put it all together. It was great to have some new faces again this week and nine very happy people went home with lovely hand bound books.

Thankyou to Kerrie for her preparation and generous skill sharing for this workshop.

The governance workshop was well attended with 12 participants learning a variety of ways to contribute effectively to your community organisations. Participants from sporting, cultural, shire, tourism, development and support groups were represented, which made for a good spread of experiences to be heard. We went through legal frameworks, responsibility, risk management, accountability, policy and procedure development, advocacy, performance and succession – all very official sounding terms but are what all of you do at varying levels when you participate at a committee level in any group. Provided by Regional Arts Australia this is a nationally accredited training course, and is a valuable support to volunteers.

The Photography workshop with Veanna Scott is the 6th/7th of October. More details in the next lakes Link. This is both for digital and regular camera users, and is filling up, so if you haven't booked please phone Kerrie on 9865 4042 or Anna 9865 4023.

Also don't forget the Newdegate Field Days Art exhibition – visit if you are out there, as always there will be some great work on show. Artists' - All work is to be in at the shire depot by Monday the 3rd to ensure it will be transported out to Newdegate.

LAKE GRACE GOLF NOTES

On the 19th of August we played a stableford competition. Thrifty Link was the sponsor of the day, with all 12 golfers having a good fun day. The golf club would like to thank Allan and Rita Marshall for becoming a sponsor at the club. Allan was on hand to present the winners their trophies.

Trevor Norman was the men's winner with 43 points from Marcus Owen who scored 41 points. Well done to Trevor. Michelle Lay was the ladies winner with 37 points. Trevor Norman won the Westpac ball on 4 and the CSBP travel mug on 6, Marcus Owen won the Tyrepower bag on 15 and Chad Stanton won the Hotel ball on 18.

This week we had a two person ambrose sponsored by Farmers Centre Lake Grace, thank you to Gary Frost for continuing to sponsor the golf club. Once again the weather deterred a few. There were nine groups who teed off, with all having a good day. Thank you to those clients of Gary's who traveled and enjoyed the links course.

The winners of the day were Gary Seward and Craig

Reeves with a score of 73-10.5-62.5. The runners up were Greg and Curtis Edwards on 82-12.5-69.5. Third went to Evan Wyatt and Jared Bray, fourth Trevor Norman and Nick Maalouf, fifth Mark Seaman and Alan Stubberfield. The naga on the day went to Peter and Michelle Lay.

There were numerous novelties out on the course. Long drive on 1 Mark Seaman, second shot on 5 Evan Wyatt, longest putt on 7 Alan Stubby, long drive on 11 Curtis Edwards, second shot on 12 Morrie Smith and longest putt on 17 Gary Seward. A special mention must be made of Greg Edwards who had an eagle on number 8. There was also the nearest the pins; Morrie Smith won the Westpac ball, Michelle Lay won the CSBP sun shield, the Tyrepower bag went to Alan Stubby and Jared Bray won the LG Hotel ball on 18.

Next week we have a stroke competition sponsored by Ross and Belinda Bowron at Neu-Tech Auto's. There will be hamburgers for tea afterwards. The following week is a par competition sponsored by Farmworks.

Nicholas Dunham - 2007 Junior Golf Champion

Played in two rounds, the weather gremlins were out in force for the second half of the Junior Golf Championships. Junior golfers started with a round of nine holes on Sunday 19th August, before playing their final round in wintry conditions on Sunday 26th August. Shoes were off and towels were out as the twelve finalists squelched and dripped their way into the club house after playing their final round.

While junior coach, Gary Frost, totted up the scores; the juniors chomped their way through a sausage sizzle. Sponsor, Trish Cameron, presented the trophies on behalf of Lake Grace Concrete.

2007 Champion - Nicholas Dunham
2007 Runner-up Champion - Lindsay Willock

B Section Winner - Jamie Bell
B Section Runner-up - Caitlyn Trawinski
B Section Third - Amy Willock
B Section Fourth - Luke Trawinski
B Section Fifth - Brendan Bell
B Section Sixth - Tina Willock

Most Consistent - Adam Hunt

Most Improved - Isabelle Seward

Congratulations to all our winners, we had 25 juniors in all who registered for our 2007 programme. As coaches we have seen a huge improvement in everyone's game.

Unfortunately we bid farewell to the Willock family who are heading to Perth to further their education; also we say goodbye to Nicholas Dunham and Brody Cameron who are heading for Narrogin. We can only hope they can take their golfing prowess with them.

A huge thank you to Mark and Trish Cameron from Lake Grace Concrete who came on board with the Lake Grace Junior Golf some five or six years ago. Without their very generous support our Juniors could not enjoy the end of season championships and the rewards that it has to offer. Once again many thanks Mark and Trish.

Also many thanks to Garry and Lorraine Seward who also very generously decided to contribute to our Juniors, we appreciate their support also.

To John and Jeanette Bennett who started the 'Rhynie' award a few years ago, this still proves to be a very popular weekly award and much sought after prize.

Many thanks again go out to our fantastic sponsors, we can only hope their sponsorship will continue for the future of Junior Golf in Lake Grace.

Having had five or more senior players achieving their Level One golfing ticket will certainly help our juniors in the future. In particular I would like to thank Steve Hunt, Marcus Owen and Justin Wright for their ongoing assistance and support in coaching our Juniors each week.

To all the parents who helped out in some small way or another, please accept this as a token of our appreciation. Of course the big winners in all of this is the Juniors themselves. We've had a great bunch of kids this year and we've also had a lot of fun. Junior Golf in Lake Grace is alive and well. We look forward to another successful year in 2008.

JUNIOR BOYS HOCKEY

Lake Grace Junior Boys were narrowly defeated in the semi final held at Hyden on the 18th August. This ensured they played Kulin in the Preliminary.

Again having much of the play Lake Grace converted with a goal from Nat Curtin and the game was well and truly on.

The game started well with Lake Grace getting most the play up forward. However it was Kulin that made their mark on the score board first. Lake Grace responded with a goal from Beau Bowron, then just before half time, Kulin scored again.

Ethan Wallace wowed those of the sideline with his skills as he expertly positioned himself to score once more for Lake Grace. After many attempts Sam Curtin was rewarded with a goal, and finally, just before full time, Sheridan Fyfe slammed one home to see the score line 5-2.

With five minutes to catch their breath and get some strategic advice from coach, Belinda Bowron, our boys went back out with endeavour.

Congratulations to Lyn Carruthers who was, for the second year running, voted A Grade Fairest and Best for Roe Districts Women's Hockey Association in 2007.

Lake Grace Hockey Club will have both Junior Boys and A Grade playing in the Grand Final at Kukerin this weekend. Both teams will face Narembreen.

Our Junior Boys have played Narembreen three times this year, drawing the first meeting two all and being narrowly defeated twice, one of those the recent semi final. The boys have improved in their team game as their season has progressed and stand a very good chance of taking out the flag. Their game starts at 9.00am.

A Grade has played Narembreen only twice this season. Lake Grace put up a good fight but Narembreen prevailed on both occasions. The team has worked very hard this season to finish where we have and possess both the ability and passion to take the flag home. The game will begin at 1.30pm.

Bit of trivia for you – Lake Grace Hockey Club's A Grade team scored more goals this season than any other A Grade team in Roe Districts Hockey Association.

B Grade finished the season in 7th place with a much more successful season than the previous year, next year looks good. C Grade improved throughout the season but unfortunately finished 8th by a narrow percentage. Hopefully everyone in all grades who started playing this season for the first time will continue and help our club seek premiership success in every grade.

The wind up will be held on September 9th at the Sportsman's Club, please RSVP to Danielle for catering purposes if you haven't already done so.

The AGM will be held again at the Sportsman's Club on Tuesday 25th September starting at 7.30pm.

Agenda items to be handed to the Secretary prior to 14th September.

All Committee and coaching positions will be declared vacant. Association positions will also need to be filled at the AGM, if you have a desire to help in this way please put forward your nomination prior to the AGM.

Any players who have not returned their shirts please do so this week. You can drop them off to Di Desmond at Retravision and Michelle will pick them up from there. Don't make her have to chase you up.

Second Semi Final

A GRADE - Lake Grace Pingrup vs Jerramungup

The A Grade girls were one of four Lake Grace Pingrup teams who travelled to Nyabing to compete in the second semi final. Training through the week focussed on strategies to combat a tall and accurate Jerramungup shooting duo, with this task being placed on our hardworking and consistently reliable defence of Penny and Louise. The game began evenly with both ends struggling with the finals jitters. Mid court pressure by Tammy and Michelle on some of Jerramungup's senior players lifted our confidence, as did the turnovers from our defence. A few missed goal opportunities gave Jerramungup a lead of six at quarter time.

Rysha and Ash worked tirelessly in goals together against a physical Jerramungup defence, and once again Delys showed us why she earned top spot in our club votes, creating some fast play with accurate leads and passing. Unfortunately, the difference had increased to 10 goals by half time and it was time to bring on fresh legs in Tabitha and Annie. Tabitha's fast and agile style opened the court up to introduce some long passing and feeding into the goal circle. The tussle with the Jerramungup defence continued, making

Annie and Ash work harder to get the ball into the circle. Unfortunately we ran out of legs and time, with Jerramungup securing their place in the grand final.

Jerramungup 46 def Lake Grace Pingrup 31.

SUB JUNIORS – Gnowangerup defeated Lake Grace Pingrup

Preliminary Final - Lake Grace Pingrup vs Newdegate

A GRADE

The effects of last week's physical game were evident with a few sore bodies throughout the week, but the girls prepared mentally for another hard and fast game against Newdegate. Both teams were evenly matched, sharing a win and a loss at our meetings throughout the season. The game didn't begin quite how we had intended, with Newdegate scoring the first three goals and we took the first quarter to shake the finals nerves. The second quarter saw us play more of our style, with both Penny and Louise keeping the Newdegate attack to 5 goals for the quarter, although goals were difficult to come by at both ends of the court. In the second half we played catch up and a change putting Rysha into goals saw us come within one goal in the last quarter. Unfortunately we couldn't convert when we needed to with Newdegate the victors by 5 at the final buzzer.

SUB JUNIOR

Lake Grace Pingrup defeated Newdegate.

Congratulations to the junior team on their win and well earned place in the grand final next week. The skill level of these young players is outstanding and is a credit to the hard work and netball knowledge of Maria Taylor. The Lake Grace Pingrup Netball Club would like to thank Maria for her dedication to the development of these young players. Thankyou also to Theresa Naisbitt, who has once again taken on the coaching role of the netta players, and is also credited with the development of crucial skills so early on. Best of luck to the Maria and the junior girls for their grand final against Gnowangerup on Saturday.

Thankyou to everyone who helped out throughout the day, either in the kitchen or out on the courts. Your contributions are most appreciated. As this is the last lot of notes for netball this season, I would like to take the opportunity to thank the A Grade girls on a very successful and enjoyable season and to thank Annie, Penny, Amanda and the committee members for all their assistance throughout the season.

Also thankyou to everyone who has assisted the club over the season, making afternoon tea, selling tickets, working in the kitchen and doing dinners.
